

Immigration and Ellis Island - 7th Grade

A Primary Source Document Digital Mini-Kit

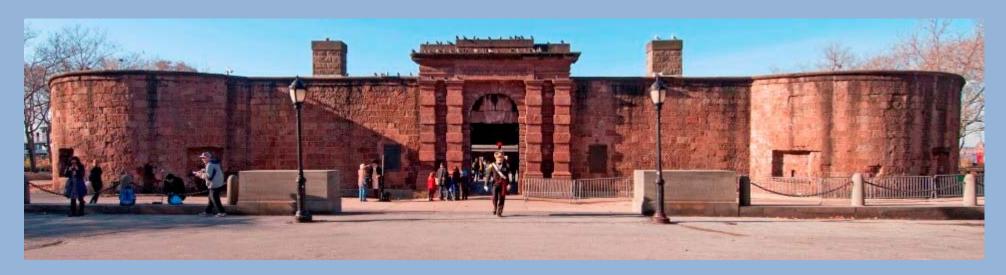

presented by West Chicago City Museum

The purpose of this kit is to supplement your regular curriculum with fun activities that reinforce the concepts taught, while at the same time exposing students to the history of West Chicago.

Worksheets can be projected on a screen or wall to serve as whole-class activities. They can also be printed out in limited numbers for small-group work or given to each individual child for independent work. For this kit, we have presented West Chicago history by making connections between our past and Chicago's. Contact Maggie Capettini at MuseumEd@westchicago.org with questions or comments.

Before immigrants were processed through Ellis Island, they came to the United States through a place known as Castle Garden in New York City.

The Immigration Years 1855-1890

On August 3, 1855, Castle Garden opened as an immigrant landing depot. The creation of Castle Garden, the official immigrant processing center in the nation, represented a country at a crossroads, signaling a change in American immigration policy, and in the ways through which immigrants became Americans.

During the next 34 years, over 8 million people entered the United States through Castle Garden. Two out of every three immigrants to the United States in this period passed through the Castle Garden. It was closed on April 18, 1890.

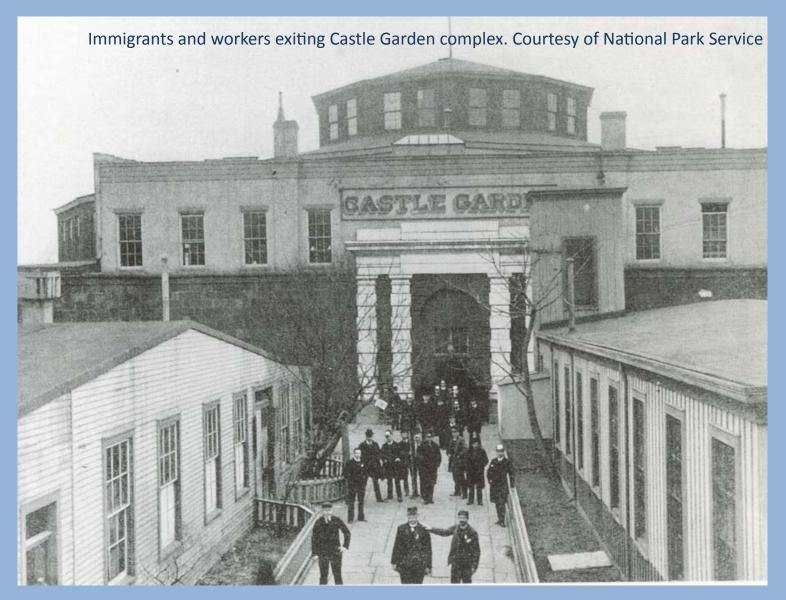

This is a primary source document about Castle Garden.

From when does this image date?

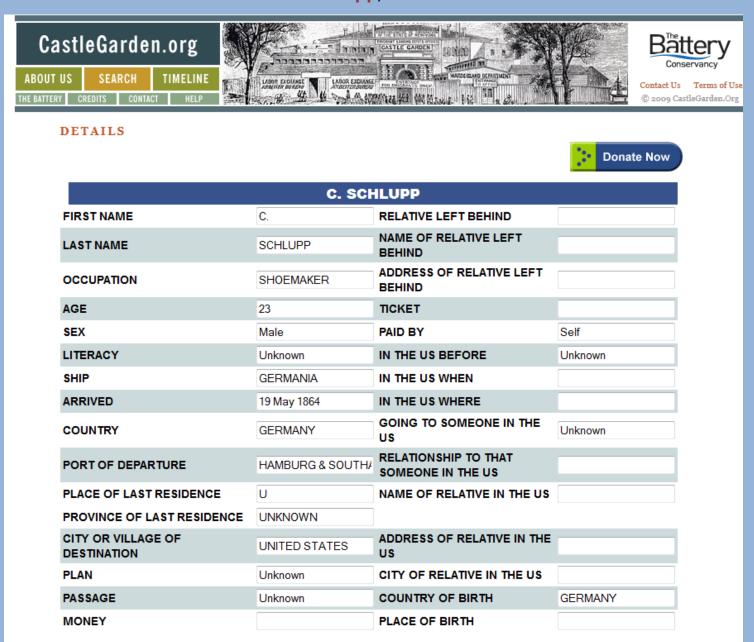

What can you learn from the illustration? What questions do you have after looking at this illustration?

Many of Turner Junction's* earliest settlers came to the area from England, Ireland, and Germany between the 1830s and 1870s. Many of them likely came through Castle Garden as part of the journey to the area now known as West Chicago.

*From 1850 until 1896 Turner Junction was the name of the town we now call West Chicago.

This is a record of immigration from Castle Garden. This record is a likely match for a man named Charles Schlupp, who lived in Turner Junction

This census was taken in 1880 in Turner Junction. Charles Schlupp and his family are listed on lines 44-50. Charles' profession is listed as "shoemaker." He and his wife have "Bavaria" listed as place of birth for themselves and of both of their parents.

Where is Bayaria?

Where were the children born?

What does this tell us about how this family got to Turner Junction (West Chicago)?

Charles Schlupp and his family are included in this document on lines 37-40.

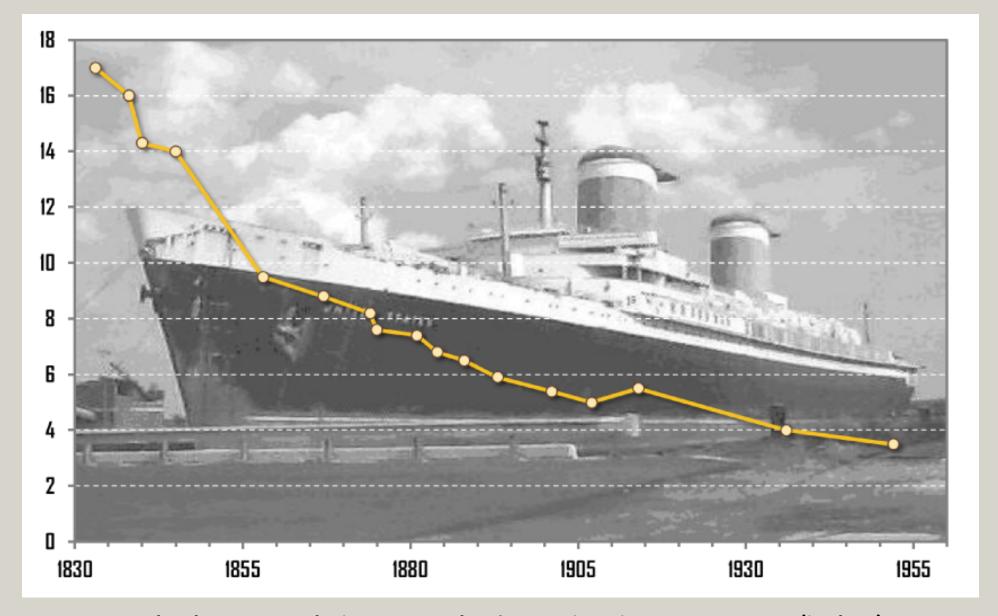

Things have changed after 20 years. Charles' profession is now listed as a saloon keeper.

Only 2 children remain at home; John (21 years old) is listed as a bar tender, and Julia (18) works as a telephone operator. Where were these children born?

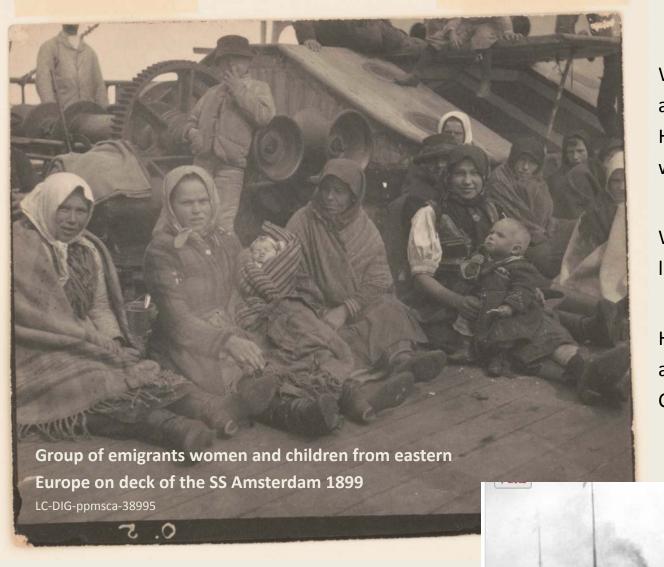

Charles and his wife Mary are both buried in Oakwood Cemetery in West Chicago.

What factors do you think made travel times go down as the years went on?

What can you tell about these women and children from this photograph? How old are they? What are they wearing? What are their moods?

What may their journey have been like?

How would you describe the ship they are traveling on? Does it look clean? Comfortable?

What might motivate someone to take a long and uncertain journey across the ocean to a new land?

Would you be willing to make a journey like this? Under what circumstances?

Americans encouraged relatively free and open immigration during the 18th and early 19th centuries.

change about immigration. Some states had already set forth their own immigration laws. In 1875, the Supreme Court declared immigration a federal responsibility. Congress began passing laws that put limitations on immigrants. For example, certain types of laborers were not allowed to immigrate. Neither were people who were "idiots, lunatics, convicts, and persons likely to become a public charge."

The federal government assumed direct control of inspecting, admitting, rejecting, and processing all immigrants seeking admission to the United States with the Immigration Act of 1891. The 1891 Act also expanded the list of excludable classes. It barred the immigration of polygamists, persons convicted of crimes of moral turpitude, and those suffering loathsome or contagious diseases.

On January 2, 1892, the Immigration Service opened the U.S.'s best known immigration station on Ellis Island in New York Harbor. The enormous station housed inspection facilities, hearing and detention rooms, hospitals, cafeterias, administrative offices, railroad ticket offices, and representatives of many immigrant aid societies. It was America's largest and busiest port of entry for decades. In 1893, the Ellis Island station employed 119 of the Immigration Service's entire staff of 180.

Welcome to Ellis Island!

From 1892 to 1924, Ellis Island was America's largest and most active immigration station, where over 12 million immigrants were processed. On average, the inspection process took approximately 3-7 hours. For the vast majority of immigrants, Ellis Island truly was an "Island of Hope" - the first stop on their way to new opportunities and experiences in America. For the rest, it became the "Island of Tears" - a place where families were separated and individuals were denied entry into the United States.

"Immigrant landing station" c1905 LC-USZ62-37784

The 1880s through 1920s was an era of massive immigration, as people fled economic depression.

Europeans including English, Irish, and Germans came to the West Chicago area. (Starting in the 1920s, Mexicans began immigrating to this area in large numbers as well.)

These immigrants were coming to established towns, so they did not have to bring as many supplies as the early colonists.

They brought the clothes they wore, essential cooking and craft tools, and religious items.

Some immigrants between 1880 and 1920 came as families and some came individually, following the path of family or villagers. It was not uncommon for people to return to their native land many times.

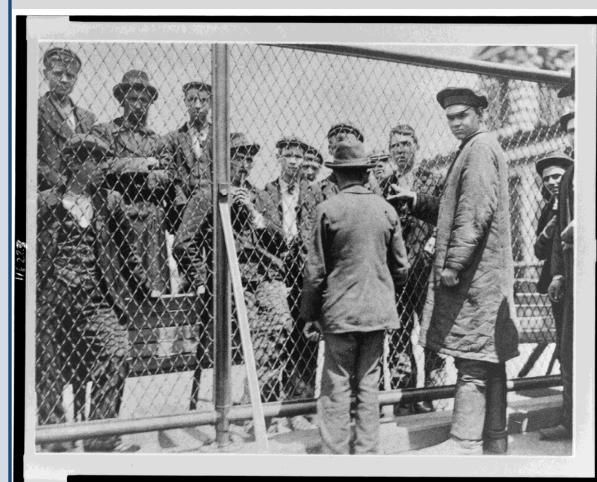

Implementing A National Immigration Policy

During its first decade, the Immigration Service formalized basic immigration procedures. It also made its first attempts to enforce a national immigration policy. The Immigration Service began collecting arrival manifests (also frequently called passenger lists or immigration arrival records) from each incoming ship. Inspectors then questioned arrivals about their admissibility and noted their admission or rejection on the manifest records.

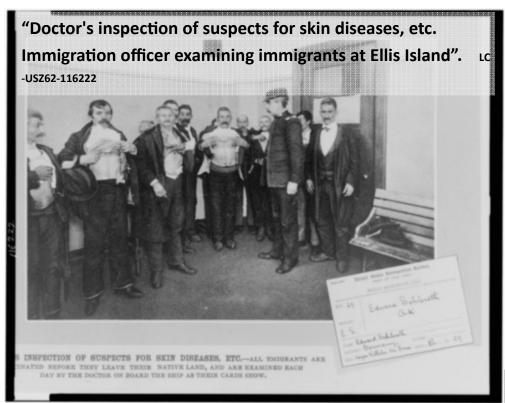

Beginning in 1893, Inspectors also served on Boards of Special Inquiry. These Boards closely reviewed each exclusion case. Inspectors often excluded aliens who were likely to become public charges because they lacked funds or had no friends or relatives nearby. In these cases, the Board of Special Inquiry usually admitted the alien if someone could post bond, or if one of the immigrant aid societies would accept responsibility for the alien.

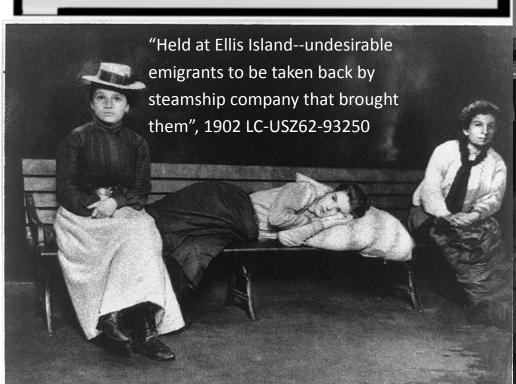

Detention guards and matrons cared for detained persons who were waiting for decisions in their cases. The also cared for people who were not admitted and were awaiting deportation. The transportation company that brought these immigrants to port were responsible for the expense of taking them back to where came from.

The U.S. Census for 1910 recorded information such as Location (address), Full Name, Relationships, Personal Description, Nativity, Citizenship, Occupation, Education, and Ownership of Home. Additionally, they recorded what language(s) the individuals spoke, whether they were "survivors" of the Union or Confederate Army or Navy, whether they were blind, and whether they were "deaf and dumb."

Exploring Primary Source Documents

	Julius Frey and Family
Look at	Doc. 1 . This is the manifest from the ship that Julius Frey took to Ellis Island.
1.	What information is given?
2.	What information is missing or incomplete?
	Docs. 2 and 3. This is the 1910 U.S. Census for West Chicago, Illinois. Julius Frey is listed in the of Doc. 2. His family is listed at the top of Doc. 3.
1.	What information about Julius Frey helps us to prove that the immigration information above is HIS immigration information? Can we prove this conclusively, or might we be wrong?
2.	What can we learn about the Frey family from the census document?
3.	What can you learn about other residents of Turner Junction at this time in history?

Name: _
Look at	Doc. 4. This is a 1912 map of West Chicago.
1.	Who prepared this map?
2.	What can you learn from this map?
3.	What political information is given on this map?
Look at	Doc. 5. This is a 2016 Google Map of West Chicago.
1.	What has changed in the last 100+ years?
2.	What is the same?
3.	Can we make any conclusions by comparing the 1912 map and the 2016 map?
